TUITION FEE FOR FULL-TIME GRADUATE
STUDENTS AT THE STATE COLLEGES

The presidents recommend adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved: that effective September 1, 1967, the Connecticut State Colleges be authorized to charge a tuition fee of $100 per semester to each full-time graduate student.

Explanation. Full-time graduate students currently pay tuition at the extension program rate of $20 per semester hour of credit. The 1967 legislature provided for general fund support for a certain number of full-time graduate students -- 239 in 1967-68 and 263 in 1968-69. Although the full-time undergraduate, who is supported by general fund appropriations, is charged $50 per semester, it is here recommended that the full-time graduate student be charged $100 per semester. The charge of $100 is recommended because it approximates the $95 fee charged to graduate students by the University of Connecticut and is reasonable as judged by prevalent practices in higher education.
